

CHARITY BOARDS INTERLOCK JUST LIKE THE OTHERS

Secretary of Rockefeller Foundation Tells of Aims of Oil Magnate in Establishing the Movement.

(BY MORNING JOURNAL SPECIAL LEASED WIRE)
New York, Feb. 2.—Jerome D. Greene, secretary of the Rockefeller foundation and formerly member of the personal staff of John D. Rockefeller, Sr., told of the aims of the oil magnate in establishing the movement today.

Mr. Greene outlined some of the work done by the various Rockefeller organizations and presented a chart which the commissioners had requested from John D. Rockefeller, Jr., showing how the directors of the different boards and the foundation were interlocked.

He denied that the foundation constituted a menace to the public and said Mr. Rockefeller, Sr., had the highest purposes in mind when he furnished the money which made possible the philanthropic and scientific organizations bearing his name.

Costigan Assails John D. Rockefeller foundation and John D. Rockefeller, Jr., he read a statement which closely followed the lines read last week by John D. Lawrence, a member of the executive board of the United Mine Workers of America from Colorado.

"Mr. Rockefeller, who appears to the world in the relief afforded Belgium as a liberal benefactor," said Mr. Costigan, "stands convicted before the workers of Colorado as a narrow, biased and vicious money maker."

Mr. Goff told of the aims of the Cleveland foundation, of which he said he was the director.

Speaking of the Rockefeller foundation, Mr. Goff said he could not help but feel that the handling of so important a trust by a self-perpetuating board presented a possible element of danger.

Mr. Costigan said he did not counsel the call to arms being issued but that the provocation should be considered.

Jerome D. Greene, secretary of the Rockefeller foundation and until recently a member of the personal staff of John D. Rockefeller, was the next witness. Mr. Greene presented a chart showing the manner in which the directors of the various Rockefeller boards were interlocked.

He said that Mr. Rockefeller, Jr., had been requested to have the chart prepared. "The word 'interlocking' has been condemned," Mr. Greene said, "but the only objection I can see is the one Mr. Elliot interposed, namely, that the director who serves on two or more philanthropic boards might injure his health by so doing."

The methods of the foundation and the various boards in disposing of funds were also described by the witness.

"I assure you," he said, "Mr. Rockefeller has tried to avoid partiality. This country realizes that."

Mr. Greene said the foundation was restricted in its actions by law. If it stepped out of bounds the attorney general of the state might intervene, the witness declared. He thought the idea expressed by some witnesses that the foundation might attempt to mold the ideas of the people was entirely wrong. Such a state of affairs could never come to pass, because of the activity of newspapers, he asserted.

Water Main Floods
NEW YORK STREETS

(BY MORNING JOURNAL SPECIAL LEASED WIRE)
New York, Feb. 2.—The bursting of a big water main at Forty-second and Eighth avenue tonight flooded large sections on both thoroughfares and brought out police resources to handle the crowds.

A tactical attempt to cross the avenue became stalled and two women and two men who stepped from it, in an attempt to reach the sidewalk, were swept away by the water and carried down the street until rescued by police.

Engineers were unable to locate the break, and it was feared that the telephone system would be affected.

Druggists Recommend a Real Kidney Medicine

I have sold a great many bottles of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root during the past twenty years and it is a preparation that is very satisfactory to my customers who buy it. I have heard a good many expressions of approval from those who have used it. I think it is a good remedy and if I were in need of a medicine I should certainly try Swamp-Root for any case of kidney, liver or bladder trouble.

HOBSON PLANS MUCH OPPOSED BY NAVAL MEN

Provision for Armor-piercing Shells Could Not Be Completed With at This Time, Says Admiral Fisk.

(BY MORNING JOURNAL SPECIAL LEASED WIRE)
Washington, Feb. 2.—Secretary Daniels sent to the house today a report from a special board of naval officers expressing the opinion that the navy's preparedness for war would be jeopardized by the Hobson amendment to the pending naval appropriation bill forbidding the purchase of 12 or 14-inch armor-piercing shells unless it is demonstrated that they can pierce 16-inch armor at 12,000 yards.

This amendment was adopted by the house several days ago, but probably will be voted on again when the bill is advanced to the point of final passage. The house spent many hours today and tonight on the measure, most of the debate centering upon the provision which would abolish the so-called "plucking" board.

In its report on the Hobson amendment, the special board, which is headed by Rear Admiral Fisk, said:

"The board is of the opinion that such a provision would jeopardize the readiness of the navy for war. We believe that our armor-piercing shells are as good as any that any nation could use against us and are as good as can be made in the present state of the metallurgical art."

Mr. Daniels also submitted a report of the board on recent tests of a high explosive shell which has been used as a substitute for the armor-piercing projectile. It follows:

"The board on torpedo shells has the honor to report that in its opinion the experiments held with the Isham shell on January 27, were not conclusive and fell far short of demonstrating that the Isham shell can be considered an effective weapon of naval warfare."

"All the shells ricocheted that fell at distances of 5,000 yards or less, but of seven fuses only two operated correctly and the shell being filled with black powder only no proof was given that if high explosives had been in the shell it could have been detonated by safe means. The experiments, however, are to be continued."

The provision to abolish the "plucking" board and authorize the president to restore to the service officers retired by the board, was adopted tonight at the close of a long debate.

All new legislation introduced by the board for the creation of a naval reserve, and to set aside $500,000 for aeronautics, were stricken out of the bill.

It had been expected that the new legislation would be defeated by points of order, or otherwise, in the house and the administration forces expect to have it re-inserted when the bill reaches the senate. If presented in the form of a conference report, it would be immune from points of order.

Majority Leader Underwood led the fight for abolition of the plucking board. He declared the board was based on a false theory and that the navy should not drive out of the service good men in order to promote others.

"For many years," Mr. Underwood said, "there has been a close corporation in the house and in the navy department that has run the United States navy. This day has come when the American people have a right to see that the American navy is run in the interest of the people and the first thing to do is to return these officers to the service of their country."

Will Torpedo British Merchant Steamers

(BY MORNING JOURNAL SPECIAL LEASED WIRE)
Amsterdam, Feb. 2 (via London, 8:25 p. m.)—Discussing the torpedoing of British merchant ships by submarines, the Kreuz Zeitung, a Berlin newspaper, says:

"England and France cannot claim from us in all circumstances and without exceptions the benevolent treatment which we hitherto have accorded merchant ships at sea. Certainly the life of no civilian will be sacrificed without necessity, but as no one refrains from bombarding a fortress of places on a battle field because civilians may thereby be killed, so England has not hesitated to throw the North sea with mines whereby the lives of neutrals are sacrificed, so shall we not refrain from torpedoing English merchant ships simply because the lives of a few are thereby endangered."

While trying to reach the harbor here last night, the vessel went aground and Captain Svensen was forced to anchor outside the harbor entrance. The wind capsize her and three seamen were caught in their berths and drowned. The others escaped by diving from the doors and windows.

Babies of Poor PEOPLE DIE IN GREAT NUMBERS

(BY MORNING JOURNAL SPECIAL LEASED WIRE)
Washington, Feb. 2.—The first report of its study of infant mortality was made public tonight by the federal children's bureau. It is based on conditions found by the bureau's investigators in Johnston, Pa.

While it carefully avoids conclusions, the report points out that in the poorest sections of Johnston the death rate was 271 per thousand babies or more than five times that in the best residential sections of the city.

Babies whose fathers earned $10 a week or less, the report says, died at the rate of 256 per thousand, while those whose fathers earned $25 or more a week died at the rate of 84 per thousand. Only 45.6 babies per thousand died under one year old when breast-fed, for at least three months, as against 165.8 per thousand who died when fed with artificial foods.

When mothers were employed, a large part of the time in heavy work babies died at a rapid rate.
